SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The branch newsletters and printed material in this part of Papers of the NAACP provide an excellent nationwide overview of state and local NAACP activity during the high point of the post–World War II struggle for civil rights. This series of branch department files is composed of five subseries: branch directories; handbooks and manuals; branch, state conference, and regional newsletters; convention programs; and branch, state conference, and regional reports.

The first subseries is branch directories. The branch directories, which are arranged in chronological order and span from 1957 to 1964, are a useful source because they present important data about the structure, organization, and leadership of the NAACP. They typically include a listing of the branch, state conference, and regional officers, as well as the location of the offices and the home addresses of the officers.

The second subseries in this edition consists of handbooks and manuals from the Southeast and West Coast regional offices. These handbooks provide insight into some of the procedures that governed NAACP branches between 1956 and 1965. For example, the handbook for Southeast region branches details the duties of branch officers, procedures for branch meetings and public meetings, and instructions for the various branch committees. The 1965 Southeast region handbook also includes guidelines for women NAACP members.

The largest subseries comprises newsletters from NAACP branches, state conferences, and regional offices. Newsletters from over one hundred branches and state conferences are included in this edition. These newsletters allow for a detailed, inside view of the main issues, concerns, and campaigns of NAACP branches during the period 1956 to 1965. The newsletters also reveal the interaction between local struggles and the national movement for civil rights.

In the decade following the NAACP's victory in Brown v. Board of Education, the association mobilized its network of local branches to press for desegregation of public schools across the country. For example, the Florida State Conference newsletters include a statement of policy from the 1958 Florida State convention that criticizes attempts to circumvent the Supreme Court's Brown decision and calls on the people of Florida to accept the decision. Although Brown dealt specifically with de jure segregation, this edition illustrates that the NAACP did not restrict its education-related initiatives and legal fights to southern states. A March 1962 article in the Central Long Island, New York, newsletter reports that the NAACP had recently “declared an all-out war” against segregated schools in northern states and it states that the branch would soon take up its own legal battle against local schools. The Chicago, Illinois, newsletters chronicle the branch’s campaign against overcrowded schools. The complete files of the NAACP’s efforts against discrimination in education can be found in UPA’s Papers of the NAACP, Part 3: The Campaign for Educational Equality, 1913–1965.

Local NAACP activism in the area of employment and employment discrimination is also well documented in the branch newsletters. For example, the River Rouge–Ecorse, Michigan, summer 1960 newsletter contains a column that discusses the disproportionately harmful impact on African American workers of automation and deindustrialization. A June 1965 Jamaica, New York, article comments on a pending bill in the New York State legislature that would have given the International Longshoremen’s Association and the New York Shipping Association control over hiring decisions. The article acknowledges the problems facing longshoremen because of the “pangs of automation,” but it opposes the bill on the grounds that a “union hiring hall” and equal opportunity are “incompatible” in this case. The NAACP’s complex relationship with organized labor is also evident in other branch newsletters. An article in the December 1958 New York City newspaper entitled “Unions Reflect Meager Process” criticizes New York area unions for discrimination against African Americans and Puerto Ricans, particularly their exclusion from union leadership positions. Another article in the same issue discusses the positive accomplishments of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO) in organizing African American workers and praises the CIO for its support of the NAACP and other civil rights organizations. The article concludes by stressing the importance of continued cooperation between the NAACP and the labor movement. Additional material on the NAACP’s relationship with organized labor may be found in UPA’s Papers of the NAACP, Part 13: NAACP and Labor, 1940–1955, and Supplement to Part 13: NAACP and Labor, 1956–1965.

NAACP political involvement during this period involved three main areas: voter registration and participation, political campaigns by members, and lobbying for civil rights legislation. Although the NAACP remained a nonpartisan organization, this did not prevent its members and local branches from becoming involved in politics. An editorial in the October 1956 Chicago branch newsletter neatly summarized this stance. Robert L. Birchman wrote: “The NAACP is politically nonpartisan. It does not endorse any party or any candidate for election to public office. But the NAACP is not non-political.... The effectiveness of our campaign for civil rights depends to a large degree on the strength of civil rights advocates at the polls. Our legislative goals can be obtained by active participation of all citizens in the political life of the country.” Local and statewide NAACP efforts for fair employment, fair housing, and civil rights legislation culminated in the passage of a national civil rights act in 1964, a voting rights act in 1965, and a fair housing act in 1968.

The newsletters are followed by a brief subseries of programs from NAACP regional conventions. This edition includes programs from the New England region, Southeast region, and West Coast region. The convention programs give an indication of some of the major issues discussed at regional conferences. For example, the 1957 New England region convention included sessions on desegregation, housing, and education. The West Coast region convention programs are from the 1959 and 1961 biennial conferences in Asilomar, California. Youth members were particularly important to the NAACP in the period between 1956 and 1965 and the Southeast region files include a program from the 1960 youth convention. Other documentation on NAACP youth members can be found in the newsletters of this edition. The files of the NAACP youth department can be found in UPA’s Papers of the NAACP, Part 19: Youth File.

The fifth and final subseries in this edition of Branch Department Files consists of annual reports from branches, state conferences, and regional offices. These annual reports generally include detailed summaries of the major accomplishments and campaigns for a particular area. For example, the 1956 Los Angeles branch annual report states that the branch received thirty-six complaints of police brutality and describes the essential aspects of three of these cases. The 1960 Mississippi State conference report by Mississippi field secretary Medgar Evers discusses a “racial self defense” program that involved a boycott of all stores discriminating against African Americans. Southeast Regional Office reports during this period were written by one of the NAACP’s most dynamic women leaders, Ruby Hurley. Additional annual reports from state field secretaries and regional leaders like Hurley can also be found in Series A, Series B, and Series D of Part 25 of Papers of the NAACP.

Papers of the NAACP, Part 25: Branch Department Files, is complemented by the Selected Branch Files in Parts 12, 26, and 27 of Papers of the NAACP. Taken together, these four parts provide a substantial amount of documentation on the functioning of local NAACP branches and state conferences. Researchers should also be aware that the branch files can be used most effectively in conjunction with other parts of Papers of the NAACP. Especially relevant in this regard is Part 23: Legal Department Case Files, 1956–1965. The Legal Department Case Files document many of the local cases in great detail. Other parts of UPA’s Papers of the NAACP that provide additional information on the period from 1956 to 1965 are the following:

- Part 1: Meetings of the Board of Directors, Records of Annual Conferences, Major Speeches, and Special Reports, Supplements for 1956–1960 and 1961–1965
- Part 3: The Campaign for Educational Equality, Series D: Central Office Records, 1956–1965
- Supplement to Part 4, Voting Rights, General Office Files, 1956–1965
- Supplement to Part 5, Residential Segregation, General Office Files, 1956–1965
- Supplement to Part 13, The NAACP and Labor, 1956–1965
- Supplement to Part 16, Board of Directors File, 1956–1965
- Supplement to Part 17, National Staff Files, 1956–1965
- Part 19: Youth File, Series D: 1956–1965, Youth Department Files
- Part 20: White Resistance and Reprisals, 1956–1965
- Part 21: NAACP Relations with the Modern Civil Rights Movement
- Part 22: Legal Department Administrative Files, 1956–1965
- Part 24: Special Subjects, 1956–1965.

UPA has also filmed several other collections that provide further documentation on the modern civil rights movement. These include:

- Centers of the Southern Struggle: FBI Files on Selma, Memphis, Montgomery, Albany, and St. Augustine
- Civil Rights During the Johnson Administration, 1963–1969
- Civil Rights During the Kennedy Administration
