SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This series of Papers of the NAACP documents the activities of NAACP branch offices and state conferences in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. The files are arranged alphabetically by state and thereunder by city and span from 1956 to 1965.

The Branch Department files provide an important local perspective on the functioning of NAACP branches and state conferences and reveal a vibrant movement for civil rights among NAACP branches in the Midwest. The files contain correspondence from the national office to the branches as well as correspondence and reports generated at the local level and forwarded to the national office. These files cover a wide variety of local matters such as branch elections, membership drives, fund-raising, factional disputes, and local civil rights initiatives. The most well-documented campaigns in this edition pertain to schools and employment discrimination.

In the Midwest, where de facto rather than de jure segregation was generally the rule, combating de facto segregated schooling emerged as a major NAACP campaign after 1954. While the Supreme Court's decision in Brown v. Board of Education specifically dealt with de jure segregation, the NAACP used the Brown decision to attempt to overturn de facto school segregation as well. The most well-documented school case in this edition of branch files involved the Chicago public schools.

The Chicago NAACP branch conducted a lengthy and determined campaign to eliminate segregation and discriminatory practices in the Chicago schools. Over the ten-year period covered in this edition of Papers of the NAACP, the branch's concerns about the Chicago schools essentially remained the same. The branch argued that the major problem facing the Chicago schools was segregation and that de facto segregation was, in turn, directly linked to other serious problems. These other problems included overcrowding at the predominantly African American schools, lower spending for African American students than for white students, large pupil to teacher ratios in the predominantly African American schools, and inferior equipment and teaching materials at these schools. The Chicago NAACP directed particularly harsh criticism at the superintendent of the Chicago public schools, Benjamin C. Willis. In 1965, the branch charged that Willis had failed for ten years to respond to NAACP demands, and that since 1964 he had not addressed the problems cited in two separate studies of the Chicago school system conducted by professors at the University of Chicago. In a February 1965 statement, the branch publicly opposed the renewal of Willis's contract, charging that Willis had actually helped to increase racial tensions in the city. Other aspects of the Chicago NAACP's campaign for quality education consisted of appearances before and proposals to the Chicago Board of Education, meetings with legislators such as Adam Clayton Powell, and filing lawsuits against the Chicago Board of Education.

Other files in this edition contain materials about school desegregation in midwestern locales. The Illinois State Conference files contain a report by education chair Faith Rich on de facto segregated schools throughout Illinois. A 1958 report in the West Virginia State Conference files by state conference president T. G. Nutter includes comments by teachers on the process of school desegregation in West Virginia. A 1961 report by the state legal redress committee summarizes the status of legal actions in several West Virginia counties. Additional information on NAACP school desegregation campaigns can also be found in UPA's Papers of the NAACP, Part 3: The Campaign for Educational Equality, 1913–1965, and in Papers of the NAACP, Part 23: Legal Department Case Files, 1956–1965, Series C: The Mid- and Far West.

Local NAACP activism in the area of employment and employment discrimination is also well documented in this edition of branch files. The Chicago branch records include updates on progress made in opening jobs to African Americans. For example, the 1961 annual report mentions that the branch filed twenty-five complaints with the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission, and as a result of these efforts, several businesses hired African Americans. The 1964 annual report notes the opening of new apprenticeships in the building trades. In 1963 the Chicago NAACP teamed up with the Chicago Urban League in a "talent bank" to identify people with certain skills who could then immediately apply when jobs opened in their field. The Illinois State Conference files contain a fact sheet detailing employment discrimination at General Motors. The River Rouge–Ecorse, Michigan, branch fought to secure jobs at the River Rouge Savings Bank. In Cincinnati, Ohio, the branch used direct action and boycotts in an attempt to win jobs for African Americans. In a March 3, 1960, telephone conversation with NAACP national branch director Gloster B. Current, Cincinnati branch president William Bowen explained the branch's decision to picket Cincinnati Woolworth and Kress stores. Bowen said that in part the pickets were initiated to support the sit-in movement in the South, but it was also done because there were no African American employees in thirteen Kress and Woolworth stores in the Cincinnati area. The branch used the momentum from these demonstrations to launch actions against other companies with discriminatory employment practices. In 1961, efforts primarily focused on The Coca-Cola Company. As of May 18, 1961, Coca-Cola employed only two African Americans, both as janitors. The branch demonstrated at Coca-Cola's factory in Cincinnati and at grocery stores selling Coca-Cola. The slogan for the campaign was "It's No Joke, We're Not Buying Coke." In addition to the campaign against Coca-Cola, the branch also instituted boycotts against the Avondale-Berling Dairies, the Canada Dry Bottling Company, and the McAlpin Company.

The president of the Illinois NAACP State Conference, L. H. Holman, was particularly active in combating employment discrimination. For example, in April 1961, Holman testified before the Illinois Senate's Industrial Affairs Committee to advocate for the creation of a fair employment practices commission in Illinois. In his testimony, Holman summarized the findings from an NAACP study on employment discrimination in Illinois. Holman's statistics painted a fairly dismal picture. In Massac County, where the overall unemployment rate was about 16 percent, the unemployment rate for African Americans was around 40 percent. At the Electric Energy Company and Allied Chemical Corporation, which together employed over six hundred people, only one employee was an African American. In East St. Louis, Holman said, construction jobs remained reserved for whites, and in Champaign, no African Americans were employed in professional, management, or supervisory positions. The Illinois legislature passed a fair employment practices law in 1961, but Holman did not cease his activities. In October 1961, he testified before the Committee on Education and Labor of the U.S. House of Representatives. This time Holman stressed the need for federal fair employment practices legislation (see Reel 3, Frames 0261–0273). In this same statement, he also criticized the discriminatory practices of some labor unions. Holman made a more detailed critique of the labor movement in a speech at the 1964 Illinois NAACP state convention. The speech, entitled "Our New Enemy: Organized Labor," discussed the problem of the exclusion of African Americans from labor unions. Holman said that this exclusion was becoming an acute problem because automation was claiming about forty thousand jobs per week in the mid-1960s. Holman recommended taking the employment fight to the streets. Additional material on the NAACP's relationship with organized labor may be found in UPA's Papers of the NAACP, Part 13: The NAACP and Labor, 1940–1955, and Papers of the NAACP, Supplement to Part 13: The NAACP and Labor, 1956–1965.

In addition to NAACP branch campaigns against discrimination in education and employment, the Midwest branch files contain many discussions of other branch initiatives and local events. For example, in Cairo, Illinois, NAACP youth council members teamed up with members of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in an attempt to desegregate the swimming pool and roller rink in Cairo. In Cincinnati, Ohio, branch members tried repeatedly to gain entrance to the Coney Island amusement park. As a result of the demonstrations, on May 27, 1961, Coney Island officials agreed to desegregate all of the amusement park's facilities. Police brutality is also documented in several branch files. In Columbus and Cincinnati, Ohio, the branches pressed for the creation of independent civilian review boards. The Benton Harbor, Michigan, files contain an affidavit by LeRoy Payne, who was beaten during questioning at the police station. The reel and subject indices of this guide may be consulted for these episodes and other aspects of NAACP activity in the Midwest.

Part 27: Selected Branch Files, 1956–1965, represents a continuation of the Selected Branch Files from Part 12 (1913–1939) and Part 26 (1940–1955) of UPA's Papers of the NAACP.

While the Branch Department files do provide essential detail on local and state NAACP activity, researchers should be aware that the branch files can be used most effectively in conjunction with other parts of Papers of the NAACP. Especially relevant in this regard are Part 23: Legal Department Case Files, 1956–1965, Series C: The Mid- and Far West; Part 25: Branch Department Files; and Supplement to Part 5, Residential Segregation, General Office Files, 1956–1965. The Legal Department Case Files in Part 23 document many of the local cases in great detail. The records in Part 25 include regular reports from the NAACP's regional field staff; and Series C of Part 25 reproduces the printed material and branch newsletters of Midwest branches. The General Office Files in Supplement to Part 5 contain many records dealing with housing cases in Illinois, Michigan, West Virginia, Iowa, Kansas, Ohio, and Wisconsin. Other parts of UPA's Papers of the NAACP that provide additional material on the period from 1956 to 1965 are the following:

- Part 1: Meetings of the Board of Directors, Records of Annual Conferences, Major Speeches, and Special Reports, Supplements for 1956–1960 and 1961–1965

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major topics, personalities, and activities in this microform publication. The first number after each entry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which a particular file folder containing information on the subject begins. Hence, 7: 0712 directs the researcher to the folder that begins at Frame 0712 of Reel 7. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial section of this guide, the researcher will find the folder title, inclusive dates, and a list of Major Topics and Principal Correspondents, arranged in the order in which they appear on the film.
