INTRODUCTION

This microform presents a broad view of a changing Soviet Union. Following the Twentieth Party Congress in 1956 and Premier Nikita Khrushchev's de-Stalinization speech, the USSR seemed poised to enter the 1960s with hope for a brighter future.

In terms of political affairs, the early 1960s saw a continuation of de-Stalinization, Communist Party of the Soviet Union (CPSU) reforms, ideological changes, and popular discussion of the peaceful coexistence concept. The watershed for political reforms was the Twenty-second Party Congress in 1961. This congress promulgated a new party program based on reform, the promotion of social unity, minimizing the role of the centralized bureaucracy, emphasizing the role of mass consciousness, and popular participation in building a communist society based on material abundance, equality, and self-government.

Khrushchev and the moderate members of the Politburo and CPSU sought to implement the reforms of the 1961 party program through economic, political, and cultural integration.

Khrushchev abandoned the traditional five-year plan in favor of a lengthened planned period (seven years) and introduced rolling targets. He broadened the group of priority sectors to include the chemical industry, housing, transportation infrastructure, and energy. Increased agriculture was brought about by liberalizing agricultural prices, increasing capital investment, relaxing restrictions on private-plot production, allowing collective farms to purchase farm machinery, and instituting a minimum wage system for farm labor. Khrushchev's long-term objective for the agricultural economy seemed to support the merging of collective and state farms into a uniform "agro-industrial" complex. He raised the living standards of the masses and supported the growth, albeit very slowly, of consumer industries.

Khrushchev's reformist economic policies were marked by inconsistency and over-optimism, however. His upgrade of the status of agriculture within the Soviet economy eventually led to a backlash by regional CPSU officials when local officials were split into industrial and agricultural political action groups, thus diluting the power of the regional party officials.

Social and cultural affairs also included their share of paradoxes. In 1958, Khrushchev had forbidden the publication of Boris Pasternak's Doctor Zhivago, but in 1962 he approved the publication of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich—an indictment of Soviet life.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, 1960–1963

The U.S. State Department Central Files are the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. Surpassing the scope of the State Department's Foreign Relations of the United States (FRUS) series, the Central Files for a country cover extensively the political, military, social, and economic matters relating to that particular country and/or world event.

The State Department Central Files for 1960–January 1963 are vast, recently released internal records for most countries for a crucial period in U.S. and world history. Each part of the 1960–January 1963 series contains a wide range of primary materials: special reports and observations on political and military affairs; studies and statistics on socioeconomic matters; interviews and minutes of meetings with U.S. and foreign government officials and leaders; legal and claims documentation; full texts of important letters and cables sent and received by U.S. diplomats and embassy personnel; reports, news clippings, and translations from journals and newspapers; and countless high-level/head of state government documents, including speeches, memoranda, official reports, aide-mémoire, and transcripts of political meetings and assemblies.

In addition, these records offer new insights into the evolution of American foreign policy toward both allies and adversaries and into the shaping of the policies of these countries toward the United States as well. Of even greater importance for the study of individual countries is the comprehensive manner in which the Central Files illuminate the internal affairs of foreign countries. There are thousands of pages arranged topically and chronologically on crucial subjects: political parties, unrest and revolution, human rights, government administration, fiscal and monetary issues, labor, housing, police and crime, public health and works, national defense, military equipment and supplies, foreign policy making, wars and alliances, education, religion, culture, trade, industry, and natural resources. On these subjects and more, the Central Files offer authoritative, in-depth, and timely documentation and analysis.

ORGANIZATION OF THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE DECIMAL FILING SYSTEM

From 1910 to 1963 the Department of State used a decimal classification system to organize its Central Files. This system assembled and arranged individual documents according to their subject, with each subject having a specific decimal code. The decimal system from 1950 to January 1963 consists of ten primary classifications numbered 0 through 9, each covering a broad subject area.

CLASS 0: Miscellaneous.

CLASS 1: Administration of the United States Government.

CLASS 2: Protection of Interests (Persons and Property).

CLASS 3: International Conferences, Congresses, Meetings, and Organizations.

CLASS 4: International Trade and Commerce. Trade Relations. Customs Administration.

CLASS 5: International Informational and Educational Relations. Cultural Affairs. Psychological Warfare.

CLASS 6: International Political Relations. Bilateral Treaties.

CLASS 7: Internal Political and National Defense Affairs.

CLASS 8: Internal Economic, Industrial, and Social Affairs.

CLASS 9: Other Internal Affairs. Communications. Transportation. Science.

For this section of the U.S. State Department Central Files, University Publications of America has microfilmed the documents contained in Classes 7, 8, and 9. Within these classes each subject is defined by a decimal file number. The decimal file number is followed by a slant mark (/). The number after the slant mark (/) refers to the date on which the document was generated. Documents within each decimal file number are arranged in chronological order. The entire decimal file number is stamped on the right side of the first page of every document.

These classes are concerned almost exclusively with the internal matters of individual countries. The class number (7, 8, or 9) is followed by the country number. The number following the decimal point indicates subtopics within the major classifications. The date after the slant mark (/) identifies the individual document.

CLASS 7. Example, 761.13/7-162

761.13/7-162 indicates a document dated July 1, 1962, relating to the cabinet of the executive branch of government (13) in the USSR (61).

CLASS 8. Example, 861.01/1-460

861.01/1-460 indicates a document dated January 4, 1960, relating to the cost of living (01) in the USSR (61).

CLASS 9. Example, 961.50/4-1161

961.50/4-1161 indicates a document dated April 11, 1961, relating to television (50) in the USSR (61).

Note: For the convenience of the researcher, wherever the pages represented by a specific classification number total more than one hundred, a breakdown of the material by month and year is provided.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major topics in this microform publication. The first number after each subentry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which the subject begins. Hence, 18: 0759 directs the researcher to frame 0759 of Reel 18. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial segment of this guide, the researcher will find topics arranged in the order in which they appear on the film. In order to avoid confusion, the term "Foreign relations" has been substituted for the State Department's term "Political relations." Researchers should consult the acronym list on page xxv.
